LEATHER

COWHIDE : Most popular and common due to its durability and abrasion resistance. Provides good insulation against heat with high puncture resistance.

DEER & ELK : Softest and most comfortable with high flexibility and dexterity. Highest durability and longest lasting. Excellent insulation protection against cold.

SHEEP/LAMBSKIN : Very popular choice for gloves where comfort and soft feel is needed. Soft and delicate skin and have less resistance than goatskin.

GOATSKIN : Very soft feel with high abrasion and water resistance due to its high lanolin content. High flexibility and dexterity.

LEATHER TYPES :

Grain : The smooth outside top layer of the hide.

Split : The rougher inside layer of the hide when top layer is removed.

CUTS OF LEATHER :

Side: Provides most durable and longest lasting leather due to density of the fibers.

Shoulder: More economical and less durable than side leather due to increased movement in this area leading to less density in the fibers.

Belly: Most economical leather that is rarely used due to its lack of consistency and durability.

They can provide more or less protection against cold and wind, but they are generally not suitable for temperatures below 10°C unless you tend to get hot or you like intense workouts. The variety of models is huge and ranges from ultralight aerodynamic time trial mitts that are simply a thin layer of fabric with no padding, to gloves with gel inserts, nose wipe and knuckle protection. Key features: Synthetic fabrics. Tight, semi-tight or loose fit. Depending on the model, they may or may not feature: Velcro fasteners on the wrists. Nose and sweat wipes. Reflective detailing. Gel inserts on the palm area. Elements improving the handlebar grip. Straps or pieces of fabric that help to put them on and take them off.
